WEC REACHES DEADLOCK IN NEGOTIATIONS

CURRENCY PROGRAM MUST BE IRONED OUT FIRST

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, June 19 (AP)—With plans for currency stabilization at a standstill, unofficial advocacy of the adjournment of the world economic conference until this question should be settled was advanced today by representatives of European gold standard countries.

The French delegation, leader of the gold bloc, insisted that virtually nothing could be accomplished by the conclave until uncertainty over currency values was ended.

A month to six weeks was mentioned as the probable length of the suggested adjournment.

Outstanding Developments

France and her "gold allies" took the position that the next decision with regard to efforts for fixing the dollar and the pound at a given value was up to Washington and that it was useless to attempt to continue the London deliberations until President Roosevelt has issued his final instructions upon stabilization to the American group here.

While persistent adjournment talk went on in the conference lobbies, the two principal commissions of the conference toiled in a labyrinth of opposing viewpoints on a multitude of problems.

Outstanding developments of the day as the conference began its second week included:

1. Assertion by the French that only through government agreements for the control of production and markets of raw materials is it possible to strike at the roots of the depression, and that until such action is taken it is impossible to consider reductions in tariffs and other import restrictions as have been urged by Cordell Hull, American secretary of state.

2. Presentation by Senator Pittman of Nevada as a subject for discussion of his proposal to provide a new monetary basis for currencies with the optional use of silver as currency reserve up to one-fifth of the total reserve and reduction of the coverage to 25 percent instead of 40 percent.

3. A statement by Senator Couzens of Michigan, the only Republican in the American delegation, that nationalism seemed to overshadow internationalism at the conference and that American internal policy militated against any international agreements at this time.

4. Acknowlegement by American delegation quarters that stabilization discussions are dead pending receipt of further instructions from home, which are not expected for several days.

5. Continuation of the drive for settlement of the war debts by the British delegation in the conference lobbies.

6. Announcement that 50 nations have now adhered to the tariff truce for duration of the conference including all European states except Jugoslavia, and representing 85 percent of world trade.

Complain of Confusion

Delegates of several countries complained in the conference lobbies of confusion over the American stand both on stabilization and on tariffs, and the British press made much of the American delega-

Gessner Brothers Sell Scenarios to Warners

Literary works of Robert and Harold Gessner, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gessner of Escanaba, will be used for two motion picture features, which will be produced by the Warner Brothers Photoplay company of Hollywood.

Robert, working with Ralph Block, one of Hollywood's ablest screen playwrights, has completed the script for "Massacre," based on the book of the same title, which deals with social conditions among the various Indian tribes in this country. The story has been submitted to Paul Muni, and it is likely that he will play the leading role. Robert will be retained for several weeks as a technical advisor during the making of the picture. It will be one of the Warner Brothers' feature program pictures for fall release.

Harold has closed a deal with the same studio for the purchase of his screen story entitled "Black Earth," based on the milk strike which was conducted a few weeks ago in Wisconsin and northern Michigan by the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk Pool, under the leadership of Walter M. Singler, of Shiocton, Wis. Harold has also been given a five-weeks contract to work on the screen adaptation. Richard Barthelmes may take the lead in "Black Earth."

The two brothers went to Hollywood a couple weeks ago.

YOUTH DROWNS IN BAY DE NOC

Hit By Sailboat Boom; Body Found Monday About 7 a. m.

Trying out a new sailboat near the coal docks at Escanaba, Louis M. Wurth, 16, was drowned about 3:30 p. m. Sunday when a swinging boom on the skiff knocked him into the water. Attired in heavy clothing, he was unable to save himself, and his body sank before help could reach him. A search began immediately, with officers of the police and sheriff's department taking part, but it was not until about 6:30 a. m. Monday that the body was recovered about 100 feet from the coal docks by Mr. Olson and Mr. Hamm, who went out early in a rowboat.

At one time Sunday afternoon there were 13 boats engaged in the search, using grappling hooks and equipment from the police and sheriff's department at Escanaba and the police department at Gladstone.

There were four boys in the boat at the time of the drowning, which was the second of the season in Bay de Noc. Wurth's companions on the trip were: Robert Eis, Joseph Wurth and Andy Artibee.

The victim of the drowning was born in Escanaba Sept. 17, 1916, and attended school here until last winter.

The body was taken to the Anderson funeral home, and will be removed to the family home at 1212 Second avenue north at 2 p. m. today. The funeral will be at St. Joseph's church at 9 a. m. Wednesday, with the Rev. Fr. Edward Leary officiating. Burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery.

The survivors of the young man are his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wurth, and three brothers, Frank, Nick and Mike.

WARN OF DANGERS

Workers in the general office of the North Western railway here yesterday were displaying some nervousness as they looked out of the windows and saw three little girls playing recklessly near the edge of the old Merchants' dock, a short distance away. The children were unaccompanied by any grownups. Parents were urged yesterday to instruct their children to stay away from the docks. Abut two years ago, a Beauchamp boy was drowned when he slipped and fell into the water near the same place.

Former Commander Of Legion Killed

Shreveport, La., June 19 (AP)—O. L. Bodenhamer of El Dorado, Ark., former national commander of the American Legion, died in a Shreveport hospital at 7:20 p. m. tonight of burns suffered in a gas explosion in the East Texas oil field near Henderson today.

After being taken to a Henderson hospital he was later brought here where further efforts were made to save his life by means of a "heat bath."

Mrs. Bodenhamer was with the former Legion head when he passed away. Physicians here announced that his entire body up to his chest was seared by the flames.

The explosion was set off when Mr. Bodenhamer struck a match to light a cigarette in the oil field. He was about 150 yards from the nearest well.

Police Seek Pair Who Beat Woman, 91

Owosso, Mich., June 19 (AP)—Police are seeking the two men who early Monday beat and bound 91-year-old Mrs. R. A. Titus, widow who lives alone here, after ransacking her home for money. The aged woman called neighbors to her assistance, and was removed to a hospital in a serious condition from bruises and cuts. Officials said they had been unable to learn whether the men obtained any money.

Three States To Vote On Repeal Amendment Today

(By The Associated Press)

Connecticut, Iowa and New Hampshire vote today on the question of abolition or retention of the eighteenth amendment.

To date, the score: repeal forces, 11 states; prohibition forces, none. Thirty-six states must ratify the proposed repeal amendment to end prohibition.

In Iowa, R. N. Cowin, co-chairman of the Iowa repeal for prosperity committee, said:

"Our victory at the polls depends upon whether 500,000 Iowans vote. If that many vote we will win. If less than 400,000 vote we fear defeat."

For the "drys," Dr. J. W. Graves predicted that if Iowa holds to the eighteenth amendment, the nation will.

Connecticut did not ratify the eighteenth amendment.

In New Hampshire, the campaign was carried by both sides into the eve of the election.

INDUSTRY GIVES RECOVERY PUSH

Wage Increases Will Be Provided Under Federal Act

Washington, June 19 (AP)—General Hugh S. Johnson, industrial control and public works administrator, tonight announced that the cotton textile industry had swung in at the head of the line of march under the national recovery act and that a hearing on its already submitted "code of fair competition" would be held on June 27.

Sweeping in its application, the code submitted by the industry fixes minimum wages of $10 a week in the southern industry and $11 a week in northern mills, with a maximum of 40 hours work a week.

Johnson described the projected new scales as representing an approximate increase of 30 per cent in wages in an important part of the industry and a reduction of around 20 per cent in weekly working hours.

Push Naval Building

A short while before, word was given out that road building and ship construction would lead the way in the public works division of the national recovery drive.

A total of $638,000,000 has been put aside for these activities, of which $400,000,000 will go as grants to states for highways and the remainder for constructing navy ships.

Announcement was made that bids would be opened on July 26 for 17 new navy ships, and that bids on four destroyers would be opened even earlier, on July 6.

Driving ahead at full speed, Johnson also announced tonight the formal appointment of aides to round out his organization. In addition to those previously named, he listed Duley Cates, Chicago insurance executive, and Edward F. McGrady, legislative representative of the American Federation of Labor, as assistant administrators for industry and labor respectively.

Both President Roosevelt and Johnson are hopeful that all of the ten major industries of the nation will submit their codes with all possible speed. After hearings, the regulations will go to the chief executive for approval.

REVENUE ACT SOON WILL BE IN OPERATION

FUNDS FOR SCHOOLS DEPEND ON SALES TAX SUCCESS

BY GILBERT T. SHILSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Lansing, June 19 (AP)—Governor Comstock moved today to start the wheels of the state's new revenue machinery, that fresh funds may pour into a depleted treasury as soon as possible.

Simultaneously he announced that the legislature, which departed last Saturday after a session of unprecedented length, probably is through for several months. The governor will not order an extra session before next January or February unless the sales tax law collapses to a point where essential school and state functions are impaired.

Confers With Stack

The governor conferred with Theodore I. Fry, state treasurer, and John K. Stack, Jr., auditor general, who will be members of the state board administering the three per cent sales tax act. He hopes soon to appoint a director—who will do the actual work, and whose salary was limited to $4,000 by the legislature. The governor had not yet received the enrolled bill, but he left little doubt he would sign and will make every effort to get the new levy into operation in July. It is estimated it will raise at least $31,700,000 a year.

"I prefer to wait and see what the revenue from the sales tax will be before deciding whether a special session will be necessary," the governor said. "I prefer not to recall the legislature before next January or February. It may be, with a public works program started and business improving, revenues will be higher than anticipated.

"I sympathize with the plea of the school people that they cannot get along since they were put last in the list of those to benefit from the sales tax. If it should develop they, or necessary state functions, will be left without funds I shall have to order another session. Otherwise I will wait and see what the levy will produce. It is quite possible there will be enough so we can squeeze out sufficient to keep the schools going at least until the end of the year."

The governor and state officials began in earnest the task of sorting over the pile of measures bequeathed them by the legislature.

The governor's most important task was to cast up the state's accounts and determine how close revenues will come to meeting the budget.

Schools Face Problem

The governor appeared to be inclined to the belief that the school situation will not become really serious for a few months at least. He thought they might get along until late in the fall or early next year, when legislative action could be taken if necessary. At that time school pleas may fit in nicely with his own demands. He has insisted the legislature should tax manufactured products, professional services and extractive industries as well as retail sales. Many of the governor's friends believe the pressure school representatives may bring eventually will enable the governor to win his point. They believe legislators who opposed the taxes not included in the sales levy bill may swing over if school protests mount enough.

Almost every state department would be affected by bills left by the departed legislature. A new measure would give the public utilities commission vastly broadened power over contract and common carrier motor vehicles. The commission could fix minimum rates, and might force the motor carriers to adopt schedules no lower than those of the rails.

There have been persistent reports to the governor that unless he vetoes a bill proposing a graduated license on chain stores, the sales tax may be held unconstitutional. The executive admitted he was in something of a quandary on the anti-chain store measure on his desk where many bills setting up new commissions, most of which must be named by the governor.

"Pretty Boy" Floyd Identified By Witness as Leader of Gang Which Slaughtered 4 Officers

Kansas City, June 19 (AP)—Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, Oklahoma desperado, sought in a score of murders and other crimes, was identified today by Mrs. Lottie West as one of the machine gunners who slaughtered four officers and their prisoner at the Union Station Plaza Saturday.

"That's the man I saw fire on the officers with a sub-machine gun," Mrs. West told Sheriff Thomas Bash, as she selected a photograph of the notorious bank robber and killer from a group of pictures.

Had Good View

"I noticed him first sitting at my desk in the Union station as early as 7 a. m., continued the travelers' aid worker, a witness to the barrage which killed Frank Nash and four of the seven officers returning him to Leavenworth prison.

Mrs. West's desk is at a point in the station lobby which commands one of the two doors through which train passengers enter the station.

"The man left immediately when I stepped up," she said.

She then repeated how she had seen this same man who had lounged at her desk twenty minutes before the killing, walk from the shelter of a loading dock outside the station and launch his deadly attack.

"The man with the machine gun was about 30 years of age," Mrs. West continued, relating how she had seen Floyd stealthy approach from ambush as the officers grouped about their automobile.

Mrs. West was not familiar with the appearance of Floyd, and was not informed by the sheriff that she had identified the Oklahoma outlaw.

Prior to Mrs. West's identification, T. J. Higgins, chief of detectives expressed doubt that Floyd was involved, although the Oklahoma gunman was known to be within 20 miles of Kansas City Friday night.

Hired As Assassin

Sheriff Bash said it had been known in the underworld here several months that Floyd had been used upon at least two occasions as an assassin by Kansas City racketeers.

One of these was the slaying of Jack Dalton, former policeman, whose body was found in a rural cabin about a year ago. Dalton, he said, had incurred the enmity of rivals in bootlegging.

Frank Smith, federal agent stationed at Oklahoma City, who was unscathed in the deadly fusillade, expressed the positive belief today he escaped death through the expert shooting of machine gunners who mistook him for Nash. He said he was certain the gangsters intended to free Nash, instead of kill him.

"I was in the back seat of the sedan," Smith explained. "I sat in the middle, Otto Reed (McAlester, Okla., police chief) was on one side of me, and F. J. Lackey (federal agent) on the other.

"Nash was placed in the driver's seat of the car while the officers got in. The last place anyone would expect to see a prisoner.

"They would expect him to be in the rear seat between two officers. They may not have recognized Nash anyway; he had a moustache, dark glasses, a hat, and a wig."

While federal, state and city officers conducted a grim search for the slayers of Nash, Chief Reed, Raymond J. Caffrey, federal agent, William J. Grooms and Frank Hermanson, city detectives, two armed robbers carried out a $5,000 holdup on a busy street corner today.

ORDER POSTAGE RATE REDUCTION

2c for Local Mail Will Go Into Effect on July 1

Washington, June 19 (AP)—An order restoring the two-cent local rate on first class postage on July 1 was signed today by Postmaster General Farley.

The reduction from the present three cent rate is being made under a recently enacted law and Farley hopes the volume of business will be increased to a point where work will be provided for thousands of postal employes who otherwise might be furloughed without pay.

On July 1, postage on letters and other first class matter, except postal cards and private mailing or post cards, mailed for local delivery at postoffices having City, village or rural letter carrier service, will be at the rate of two cents for each ounce or fraction thereof. The rate on letters mailed to other cities or villages remains at three cents. The rate for cards remains at one cent.

Threatened Storm on Sea Delays Vacation Cruise of Roosevelt

BY FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Nantucket, Mass., June 19 (AP)—Threats of a dreaded nor'easter with its fog and gales brought President Roosevelt into this quaint harbor town today and held him here tonight with the loss of a day in his sailing cruise to Campo Bello Island, New Brunswick.

While headed into the heaving seas off the elbow of Cape Cod early this morning, Mr. Roosevelt's rolling 45-foot schooner, Amberjack II, was wig-wagged back to a course that brought her here. Fresh weather reports from accompanying destroyers caused the change.

Recognized the Signs

Full of sea knowledge, "Skipper" Roosevelt recognized the weather signs and himself changed the course.

"That's right," growled Captain Gus West of the Comanche carrying the newspapermen. "It looks like a nor-easter. The wind is following through. It was southwest yesterday, north now and heading toward northeast. There isn't a port between here, Handkerchief Shoals, and Provincetown around the Cape and he couldn't reach that in the face of head winds before midnight.

"It's a shame. A man has only two weeks a year for vacation and this comes up. But there is something above that controls all that. We can't help it."

So, tonight in a harbor nestled with cottages and an overtowering gilded dome of the courthouse, Mr. Roosevelt and his crew

KIDNAPERS OF BREWER GIVEN RANSOM FUND

MILITANT HUNT FOR CRIMINALS NOW UNDER WAY

St. Paul, Minn., June 19 (AP)—Spurred by heavy rewards and aided by the ready cooperation of the victim, search for the five or six abductors of William Hamm, Millionaire brewer, released early today after payment of an undisclosed ransom sum, tonight was in full swing.

Hamm, 39 year old president of the Theodore Hamm Brewing company, pledged authorities his help immediately on his return to his home, unharmed, after being held prisoner almost four days for a ransom originally set at $100,000.

St. Paul business men during today raised reward funds totalling $30,000 for the apprehension of the gang, one of whom Hamm believed might be Verne Sankey, notorious kidnap suspect. The fund was expected to be swelled later to $50,000.

Glad to Cooperate

M. F. Kinkead, Ramsey county attorney, received Hamm's assurance of cooperation in bringing the abductors to justice.

"I will gladly cooperate by giving any information I have," Hamm told Kinkead. "Although it was a trying experience I was treated with utmost respect and courtesy, but like the old adage, home sweet home is the best place after all."

Kinkead declared that "the man hunt will never let up until all those responsible are brought to justice."

Hampered by the slimness of adequate clues and the fact Hamm was forced to avert his face from the kidnapers when he was not wearing goggles lined with cotton and a white hood, authorities nevertheless pressed their investigation with the utmost possible speed.

Held prisoner in a house located, Hamm believed, in northern Minnesota, he saw his captors only dimly, but declared, however, one of them resembeld Verne Sankey.

Four Ransom Notes

Sankey is under indictment for the Charles Boettcher II., kidnaping in Denver, and the abduction here of Haskell Bohn, son of a refrigerator manufacturer, about a year ago.

Hamm's release was effected after he had signed four ransom notes, of which only three were used. The sum of $100,000 was asked at first but only a part of this amount actually was paid.

The abductors contacted negotiators, H. C. Charles Hamm Brewing company attorney, and W. W. Dunn, the former city sales manager and close friend of Hamm, several times by telephone after he was seized near the brewery shortly after noon last Thursday.

Subsequently Hamm was freed at Wyoming, Minn., about 45 miles from here, the kidnapers disappearing after saying "if there is anything we can do to help you, Mr. Hamm, just let us know." He telephoned his home from a farmhouse and authorities came and brought him home.

News of her only son's release was too much for Mrs. Hamm, Sr., a widow, and she became ill after having borne up bravely under the tension of anxious waiting.

Hamm said he was accosted by

PRIVATE GAME PRESERVES O. K.

Comstock to Veto Bill Denying Them Longer Season

Lansing, June 19 (AP)—The private preserve shooting act was given a new lease on life by Governor Comstock today and the actual effectiveness of the new fifty cent rod license was set back three months by the conservation department.

The governor announced he would veto a bill adopted by the legislature providing for the repeal of the private preserve law. He said he believed the preserves help stock the state with pheasants.

The act the legislature sought to abolish allows members of preserves an extended shooting season, but limits the bag to fifty per cent of the number of pheasants released. The birds must be bought or raised by the members.

Bitter fights over the law have been waged in the legislature, some members claiming preserve shooting should be on the same duration as the legal season and others contending the preserves do sufficient good to warrant the extended season.

Despite an opinion from Patrick H. O'Brien, attorney general, that the general rod license law should be made effective with the opening of the bass season June 25, George R. Hogarth, conservation director, said no arrests would be made for failure to have licenses.

Many attorney members of the legislature disagreed with O'Brien. The rod license bill was passed and signed by the governor but has not been given immediate effect. Laws not voted immediate effect by a two thirds majority of the legislature do not become effective until ninety days after final adjournment. In this case the law will actually become operative about the middle of next October.

The legislature adopted a subsequent resolution urging immediate collection of the rod license, but Hogarth agreed such action did not make the law effective and is not binding.

Hogarth suggested that all fishermen who can afford to do so buy the licenses.

two men about a block from his company's office and at the foot of a high hill on which his home rests.

"One man extended a hand and after I shook hands, in response to his 'How do you do, Mr. Hamm,' " he related, "they each grabbed me by the arms.

"An automobile drew up and Hamm was forced to lie on the floor of the car after a white hood had been placed over his head. Later the hood was removed and goggles lined with cotton were placed over his eyes. Then he was permitted to sit beside the men.

"The ride out of St. Paul was interrupted by contact with another car in which at least one man sat, Hamm said. He was forced to sign four ransom request notes while lying on the automobile floor.

Given Good Meals

"Then we went on for some time. I did not see any guns at any time but I did feel one against me during the first part of that ride," he explained.

He was taken to a house in northern Minnesota and placed in a second floor room, windows of which were boarded up.

"I never saw the men because when I didn't have the goggles or hood on they made me turn my face towards the wall when they came into the room. They were very nice to me. I ordered anything I wanted. The meals were good.

"The house might have been a farm house on the outskirts of the city, as I heard traffic noises.

"The men kept me informed as to the progress of negotiations."

The negotiations began with a telephone call to Dunn, Hamm's close friend and employe. Then, at 2 a. m., Friday, the first note was received by Dunn. It said: "You better pay the money and do as you are told. You will get further instructions later on."

"The next one," said Charles, the attorney, "was received Friday night. That was found in a drug store. It was: 'If you value Mr. Hamm's life and you don't want him killed, you better pay up.'

"The third one came Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock. It was delivered to L. J. Sullwold's garage. Sullwold was an employe of the Hamm company.

"The note was found in an automobile in the garage after a telephone call informed me to that effect.

"In the telephone conversation we were informed that we would be given telephone instructions Saturday night. We got the instructions between 8 and 9 o'clock."

Negotiators then prevailed upon the abductors to take less than the $100,000 they demanded but Charles refused to reveal how much was decided upon and paid. Hamm has not yet been told and Charles said he would advise against ever making the amount public.

Acting under instructions from the kidnapers, Dunn then went to Duluth Saturday night. From a hotel room there he carried on negotiations with the kidnapers.

Ransom Delivered

An automobile owned by the brewery was used for delivering the ransom. The doors and a section of the back were removed so Hamm's captors could see it was driven by one man, unaccompanied.

Following orders of the kidnapers the ransom car was driven south from Duluth. The driver was instructed to kick the money out of his automobile when another machine passed him and gave a certain signal.

Between Rush City and Pine City two automobiles passed the ransom car. When the occupants apparently satisfied themselves the ransom car carried only the driver and the money, the signal for delivery was given and the money was kicked out as the ransom car driver kept going.

After making the delivery the ransom car returned to Duluth and Dunn awaited word from the kidnapers. This came Sunday while at the same time, the abductors told Hamm in the unlocated house that they had "some good news for you."

The "news" was the payment of the ransom and promise of his freedom. He was supposed to have been freed Sunday morning but for some unaccountable reason this was delayed.

Shortly before 7 a. m., today, however, Dunn, still in Duluth, was advised by the kidnapers that Hamm was freed. Hamm, by that time, already had been released near Wyoming and called his home from a farm house. He was picked up in Wyoming by St. Paul police and returned home about 8:30 a. m.

Hamm is the son of the late William Hamm, who left an estate of more than $4,000,000, divided between the widow and Hamm, Jr., three daughters and four grandchildren. The younger Hamm is president and treasurer of the brewing company bearing his name; president of the Emporium department store here; receiver for the Minnesota Amusement company; and a director of the First National Bank and the First Bank Stock corporation.

His kidnaping was the fourth abduction here in 22 months.

FREED BY KIDNAPERS

William Hamm, Jr., prominent millionaire brewer of St. Paul, yesterday morning was freed by kidnapers after a ransom, reported to be less than the $100,000 requested, was paid to the abductors. A militant search for the kidnapers is started.

tion's disclaimer of a series of suggestions as topics for discussion, including a suggestion for a general 10 percent tariff reduction. These suggestions had been drawn up by the American experts and had been submitted to the economic commission.

American spokesmen insisted that the incident did not represent a rift in the American delegation and that the suggestions were not presented with any intention of giving the impression that the Americans intended to push these ideas for adoption.

It was explained that the experts had merely drawn up topics for discussion, but some American delegation quarters asserted that they have been "over zealous."

It was learned that the suggestions were transmitted to Hendryk Colijn, chairman of the economic commission, with a letter from Secretary Hull, saying:

"In response to your request for suggestions as to items which might appropriately be carried on the agenda, I have the honor to transmit herewith a memorandum setting forth certain subjects for your consideration in connection with the commission's work."

The quiet slipping away of George L. Harrison, governor of the federal reserve bank of New York, early today for New York, also occasioned comment including rumors that the central banks had reached a secret agreement for stabilization. But this was denied in important American delegation quarters and the dollar weakened sharply in exchange dealings failing well under the levels recently suggested for the start of stabilization.

The full amount of conflict which the American position is meeting remains somewhat obscure.

It is suggested that the French proposals for producers and marketers agreements for such commodities as wheat, cotton, copper, silver, coal and timber might fall in line with present American plans for wheat.

Georges Bonnet, chief of the French delegation, was outspoken against currency depreciation, describing it as a false means for endeavoring to raise prices, although the Americans consider it the most important step, thus far, in the American revival program.

Senator Pittman's silver proposals were met chiefly with silence when they were read in the monetary commission's sub-committee on a permanent monetary standard.

Mr. Pittman declined to discuss his suggestions from the committee floor until delegates had had further time to study them.

Ironwood, Houghton Dropped To Second Class Postoffices

Washington, June 19 (AP)—Michigan loses eleven first class postoffices as a result of the annual readjustment of postmasters' salaries which becomes effective July 1.

Michigan offices which drop from first to second class rating are: Albion, Alpena, Cadillac, Coldwater, Dowagiac, East Lansing, Grand Haven, Hastings, Houghton, Ironwood and Petoskey.

Classification of offices is based on the volume of business done during the past year. St. Claire Shores was the only Michigan office to raise its standing, going from third to second class, but the postoffice department explained that the change will entail no increase in salary for the postmaster because of the recently adopted economy act.

Twelve Michigan offices dropped from the second to third class. These were: Decatur, East Detroit, Evart, Imlay City, Lake Odessa, L'Anse, Mackinac Island, Portland, Saugatuck, Sparta, Wakefield and Watervliet.

Twenty-four offices dropped from third to fourth class. They are: Alba, Alpha, Ceresco, Coral, Custer, Detour, Dollar Bay, Dryden, Freeport, Garden, Kibbie, Lyons, Maple Rapids, Martin, Mattawan, Middleton, Muir, Owendale, Palmer, Pewoma, Turner, Vanderbilt and Vestaburg.

NO BALLYHOO DESIRED NOW

Roosevelt Administration Warns Against Over-optimism

Washington—"Whoa!"

That's the expression unanimously used by the people charged with rescuing us from the depression when anyone becomes exuberant on the theory that permanent recovery already has begun.

It's one of the most remarkable phenomena of the "New Deal" administration. Roosevelt at his press conferences cautiously admits a little encouragement, but expresses himself in "hopes." Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins announces a relatively large jump in employment and payrolls, but warns it isn't enough to keep production increasing. Industrial Recovery Administrator Hugh Johnson privately warns that there may be a serious crash unless a more solid foundation is built for prosperity. Other officials privately or publicly echo the thought.

Still "Experimental"

The big sections of the recovery program are still spoken of as "experimental." Nobody professes to assume that they're sure to succeed. Everyone deprecates the importance of the recent rise in industrial production, commodity and securities prices, insisting that there's no evidence for any solid base for such improvement beyond the general belief that a great attempt is to be made to build that base.

The attitude is directly opposite that of the previous administration—that confidence could be restored by ballyhoo.

Facing Facts

Of course Roosevelt and his people have profited by and are anxious not to make the same mistake.

They fear that recent improvements, which may be largely the result of inflation fear, will dim the country's realization of emergency and they won't be gleeful even among themselves until they know that there has been a large increase in purchasing power.

Business Index Up

It's a good thing to know that the general business index is up four per cent above this time last year, that freight car loadings are 14 per cent higher, that electric power production is 5.8 per cent up, that farm prices have risen along with automobile and steel ingot production.

But members of the "Whoa!" school of thought hasten to point out that department store sales rose only one point in May and that if you count in the fact that there was one more business day in the 1933 May those sales are still six per cent off from May, 1932.

Those department store figures are considered disappointing.

Scrambling for Jobs

Senator Neely of West Virginia undertook to blow up the civil service when he found Postmaster General Jim Farley was giving jobs to West Virginia Democrats who were not friends of his. He heard that former National Chairman Clem Shaver was being placed in the R. F. C. and that another job was going to another Farley friend and campaign comrade, E. Percy Byrd, who is also unfriendly to Neely.

So he put in a bill making all government jobs worth more than $3500 a year subject to presidential appointment and Senate confirmation. Other senators realized this would open many important civil service and emergency bureau jobs to them, so they passed it after making the limit $5000. Roosevelt spiked it.

STORM THREAT DELAYS CRUISE OF PRESIDENT

of five friends rode it out waiting for the weather to break. All time was spent on board. Through Stephen T. Early, a secretary aboard one of the two watchful destroyers lying outside the harbor, the president kept bare contact with national and international affairs, but he was bothered only with the most urgent messages and these were very few, indeed.

Sitting behind the wheel, bareheaded and clothed in a slicker over his sweater, Mr. Roosevelt guided the Amberjack II around the point into this harbor at 11 o'clock, Daylight Time, after a five-hour tussle with the seas from Edgartown, on Martha's Vineyard Island, out to the edge of the cape and down to here. Attracted by the flotilla of ships led by the barely discernable Amberjack sailing under only a foresail, a crowd of native citizens collected at the point in the harbor and cheered Mr. Roosevelt in. He gave them a responding wave.

Obviously Disappointed

Joshing newspapermen about their rough trip, he, nevertheless was obviously disappointed at falling a day behind on schedule. He had set Provincetown for today's goal.

"How are you?" he asked as the newspapermen drew alongside his anchored craft. "We were worried about you. We decided it was better to study the weather here than off the cape. It all depends. If it clears up this afternoon we will take off."

But it didn't clear up and the seamen of accompanying vessels and of this town agreed that a nor-easter appeared in the making. A nor-easter might mean several days lost.

As on yesterday, the president did the sailing and only his sails were visible at times from the fleet in his rear. It was a heavy sea; at least it was heavy enough for some of the suffering inland newspapermen who wondered what it was going to be like when the open seas off northern Maine were encountered.

The first disability of the Roosevelt trip was a broken stove that failed to function for breakfast. "We had a cold breakfast," observed the president, "but we have some coffee brewing now and things are all right." He was very solicitous about the welfare of those following him in power boats. These were taking plenty of pitching, dipping and rolling, but so was the presidential schooner.

Keenly disappointed at the day's delay, Mr. Roosevelt still was doggedly determined on completing his trip to Campo Bello by June 28 if the weather gives him any break at all. Throughout the afternoon and night a couple of launches from accompanying destroyers circled the Amberjack, keeping the craft clear of the swarm of local boats which put out to extend a greeting.

Bill With Funds For U. P. Fair To Receive Approval

Lansing, June 19 (AP)—Governor Comstock announced today he will sign a legislative measure permitting Michigan banks to invest in bonds issued by the federal government to aid home owners. It is expected $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 of federal aid may be brought into the state to help harassed home owners.

The federal act authorized the issuance of four percent bonds, which may be exchanged for mortgages. The government guarantees the interest but not the principal, the owner being presumed to pay back the principal. Michigan banks were barred from accepting the government bonds for mortgages by state laws.

The governor also indicated he would sign the Jarvis bill legalizing betting on horse races. While he does not like the provision for a single commissioner, he said he is inclined to approve the measure.

"The bill is not perfect, but it will bring in revenue, and will encourage racing," the governor said.

The bill provides $25,000 for the U. P. State Fair at Escanaba.

WILL INCREASE CREDIT SUPPLY

New Legislation Seeks Alterations to Our Money System

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The third of a daily series, this article explains another point of the congressional program and how it affects Mr. Average Man.)

BY J. R. BRACKETT
(Associated Press Business Writer)

An extensive program to increase the number of dollars in the pockets of Mr. John American Smith and to give him sounder banks in which to keep that money is envisaged in congressional legislation embodying provisions for drastically altering the money system.

The situation which faced congress was this: first, the amount of money and bank deposits (which are used as money in the form of checks) had declined some $15,000,000,000 during the depression; second, continuously declining prices were reducing all values; third, banks were closing under this pressure and from the fear of the people.

Regulating Banks

To meet this situation congress enacted legislation as follows:

1. It approved President Roosevelt's edict closing the banks and then gave him power to open banks when convinced they were sound. It passed further legislation making it easier for banks to get money with which to pay depositors, thus saving them from runs and convincing depositors they need not fear for their cash.

2. It passed various inflationary measures to increase the supply of money and thus to raise prices, since prices go up as money and credit grow.

3. It approved President Roosevelt's decree stopping the export of gold, and made it illegal for citizens to hold gold beyond $100 per individual.

4. It declared that debts containing a clause requiring payment in gold could be paid in any legal tender, and it officially went off the gold standard.

Increasing Credit

Fundamental to the whole program was the theory that the amount of money and credit would have to be increased before Mr. Smith and his brothers could spend more.

To increase that supply of money the first step was to liquefy frozen credits and bank deposits so that money tied up could be obtained. The second step was actually to increase the supply of money and credit.

The National Industrial Recovery bill authorizes the government to borrow $3,300,000,000 and to spend it, directly increasing the amount of money in the country through increasing the amount of credit and stimulating business so that others would borrow and create more money.

Retiring Bonds

Under other legislation it empowered the President to spend $3,000,000,000 in a special issue of currency to retire government bonds of that amount and it authorized the Federal Reserve system to ease credit by buying $3,000,000,000 in government bonds.

The law also empowered the President to reduce the gold content of the dollar by as much as 50 per cent.

In order to maintain government credit and to avoid excessively inflationary steps, it passed laws reducing government expenses through reorganization of departments and reduction of expenditures to veterans. And it planned some taxes to assure the government of enough revenue to pay interest and installments on new debt.

To protect the investments of the people, the congress passed laws forcing the seller of securities to give full information about such bonds.

A basic theory running through much of this legislation is that the powers are permissive rather than mandatory. Thus, while government officials have announced that they propose to try to raise prices to predepression levels, they have several alternatives. Besides the permission to reduce the gold in the dollar, they may fix the price of silver in relation to gold, may accept silver in payment of war debts and may issue currency on the basis of that silver.

LEGION CIRCUS IN FULL SWING

Event Remains All Week at Coliseum in Escanaba

Brought to Escanaba as a benefit event for the American Legion welfare fund, an all-professional circus troupe opened a week's engagement at the Coliseum last night before a big crowd. The show consists of 15 or more acts by talented performers, with circus clowns providing mirthful interludes, and concludes with free dancing.

Numbers on the nightly programs, which start at 8 p. m., are: Everett Conway's band and orchestra, Capt. McMahon's trained dogs and ponies, Riva and Larson, European gymnasts on the Roman rings; Sailorette, queen of the air on her flying perch; Prof. Burns, presenting his troupe of trained dogs, ponies and monkeys; the Le Tourneaus, act sensational; Frank Bell, slack wire performers; the Flying Kitchens, aerialists; the four McMahons, dancers, doing pirouettes and acrobatic feats on the silver thread; Gus and Joe, comedy hand balancing and tumbling; Sparkle, the educated pony; the Latham Duo, skill in midair; the Olympia Boys, horizontal bar performers, Farmer Burns and his trained Arkansas razorback hogs; Iron Jaw Mott, world's champion strong man.

The circus is purely an entertainment feature, with the show in the arena taking up the full evening in the spacious cooled interior of the Coliseum. The only added concession on the "circus grounds" is a beer stand operated by various organizations within the American Legion.

Leebove Revealed as Lawyer for Gangsters

The answer to the question "Who is Isaiah Leebove?", has been published in a recent edition of the Detroit Free Press, who had a correspondent dig up the pertinent facts concerning the New York lawyer's life history.

Leebove has come in for much public attention lately because of his association with Frederick Kaplan, who recently was denied a private interview with the Purple gangsters in Marquette prison.

The Detroit Free Press story reads as follows:

Changing from suavity to sneering nonchalance to intelligent irascability, Isiah Leebove, the mystery man of Michigan politics, faced the legislative Lobby Investigating Committee at Lansing yesterday. Hotly he denied that he sought to aid in the release from Marquette of the three men who were convicted of the horrible Purple Gang massacre on Collingwood Ave.

Yes, he knew the New York attorney who was trying to "spring" them; yes, he did meet him at the prison; yes, they talked over the case and the New York attorney told him the hoodlums had been "framed."

The inquiry is still under way.

And over the State of Michigan there is sweeping in rising crescendo the question: WHO IS THIS MAN LEEBOVE?

An Amazing Situation

The State of Michigan is presented with the amazing situation of a New York lawyer who has made a fortune keeping gangsters and racketeers out of prison being given the position by the Governor of the State of "special investigator" of Michigan prisons. It smacks of something like asking a rabbit to guard a leaf of lettuce.

Since Gov. Comstock took office, more than 1,300 criminals have been given their freedom.

From New York comes the report that Frederick Kaplan, the "friend" whom Leebove casually met in Marquette Prison was an associate of the prison investigator in his New York law office.

Governor's Dearest Friend

Leebove admits that the first time he ever voted in this state was last November—for Gov. Comstock, who in turn calls him his dearest and most trusted friend on earth.

On the stand he freely admitted that he was Comstock's polical angel, that he had financed his campaign; gave, he said $20,000.

He says his residence is in Clare, Mich. His name does not appear in the State Gazetter. He bought a home there last fall. But he has a residence and a law office in New York.

As a New York lawyer he has been the attorney for some of the most notorious criminals in the history of New York's underworld. One of his clients was Arnold Rothstein, a gangster so powerful that he was beyond the law and only met his punishment when rival gangsters slaughtered him through a woman decoy.

Leebove is known to have been an oil promoter in Texas and Oklahoma, before and during his career as a lawyer for gangsters and professional bondsmen in New York. He came to Michigan recently for the purpose of promoting oil wells.

His Club Thrice Raided

Among his other activities he was president of a Democratic club in New York which was raided three times by the police as a gambling joint. He succeeded in having the police enjoined from molesting his place.

Somewhere in his activities whether in oil or law or gambling, he made the acquaintance of Mr. Comstock, who enjoys convivial companionships and is not averse to a turn at the wheel.

He says he financed "Bill" Comstock because he loves him and that his interest is purely altruistic. Comstock in return made him his special prison investigator because he has absolute faith in his sincerity and his integrity.

The New York lawyer and oil well promoter and the genial and happy-go-lucky Governor have become the Damon and Pythias of Michigan politics.

And so folks are asking louder than ever, WHO IS THIS MAN LEEBOVE?

Out of New York comes the following character study:

New York, June 15—Isaiah Leebove's practice has been almost entirely with racketeers and gunmen in New York and he did a great deal of work for Arnold Rothstein, who was murdered in the Park Central Hotel in November, 1928.

Leebove was born in Pittsburgh, Nov. 27, 1894. His right name is supposed to be Isador Leebove. He graduated from Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tenn., with the degree of bachelor of law, and went to Texas, where he practised law. Later he practiced in Oklahoma, and then moved on to New York.

He arrived here with an apparently unlimited supply of money, popularly said to have been made in Oklahoma oil deals. His name was soon prominently associated with those of underworld characters.

Called 'Gangsters' Mouthpiece

Soon he became known as the "mouthpiece" of racketeers and gangsters. So strong was he that many held him to be the successor of the late William Fallon, known in his time as the greatest "mouthpiece" New York crooks had ever had.

Leebove went everywhere with Rothstein and was among the regular patrons of Lindy's Restaurant, from which Rothstein was called by telephone to his suite in the Park Central before he was shot. Not long before Rothstein was killed, he and Leebove had an argument.

Apparently he made a great amount of money out of friendship with Rothstein, receiving a 40,000 fee from a New York union to defend two men accused of murder in a strike which was financed with a load by Rothstein.

Leebove was friendly with Rothstein's associates and once he won $60,000 in a dice game with Nick the Greek, perhaps Broadway's best known gambler. After Rothstein's death, Leebove was the lawyer for Nick, Alvin C. Thomas, Sidney Stajer and Jimmy Meehan, who were held for a time as material witnesses. Meehan ran the famous revolving poker game which is supposed to have been the cause of Rothstein's killing.

Rushed to Aid of 'Legs'

Always anxious to see his name in the newspapers, Leebove was ready to defend any gangster in difficulties. When "Legs" Diamond was wounded near his home in Acra, Green County, Leebove raced up from New York and announced that he was Diamond's attorney, although Diamond had not asked for one. He had, however, represented Diamond before and also, on occasion, Owney Madden.

The information here is that Leebove is working with Frederick Kaplan, another New York lawyer, now in Detroit, who is seeking to obtain pardons from the Governor.

Kaplan is said to have occupied offices with Leebove at 521 Fifth Ave. In the latest telephone book and City Directory, Leebove still lists that address as his office.

Kaplan was reported as having been retained by Rothstein to defend Charles Fawcett, who was accused of holding up a coffee pot in the Bronx. Magistrate Albert Vitale dismissed the charge, although two persons had identified Fawcett as the robber. This was one of the charges that led to Vitale's removal by the Appellate Division. Another was that he had borrowed $20,000 from Rothstein.

In Mysterious Accident

Five or six years ago, Leebove was attorney for two men held in Connecticut for a crime in New York. He went up to Connecticut with the two detectives assigned to bring back the men and on the return trip he is supposed to have run his car in a ditch, one of the detectives being injured seriously. One of the prisoners escaped. A detective held on to the other.

The files show that in 1926 Leebove was involved in a hit-and-run accident at Newington, Conn., in which Mrs. Arthur L. Young was killed. He and his chauffeur, Rufus Wood, a Negro, were held in $15,000 bail each on charges of reckless driving, manslaughter and evading responsibility after an accident. Leebove and the chauffeur had been arrested soon after the accident as they were riding through Meriden. Leebove said he drove off because witnesses shouted, "Lynch him."

Leebove was famous here for the lengths to which he would go in defense of clients wanted by the police. His dispute with Magistrate Hyman Bushel was characteristic of him.

The trouble with the Magistrate came during the hearing of a swindling charge against Dapper Dan Collins, confidence man. Collins was charged with having fleeced an Egg Harbor man out of $30,000 and the State of New Jersey wanted him. Magistrate Bushel ordered Collins held in jail without bail. Leebove argued against it and grew so arrogant that the Magistrate put him in the detention pen and kept him there for an hour.

A Threat and an Apology

When released, Leebove breathed fire and screamed vengeance through the newspapers, to the delight of the underworld. Later he quietly apologized.

In 1927, Leebove became a theatrical producer. He had a play "New York," and the management of the Broad Street Theatre in Newark, N. J., tried to keep it out because of its reported salaciousness. Leebove won a court fight to have the theatre carry out its contract. A few weeks later the play opened in New York. It turned out to be a modern version of "Nellie The Sewing Machine Girl" and didn't last long.

While New York was in an uproar over the Lindbergh kidnaping, and prominent underworld characters were being quizzed daily, Leebove suddenly disappeared. He was heard from later in Michigan, where it was announced he was attorney for Salvatore Spitale and Irving Bitz, Colonel Lindbergh's go-betweens, in the fruitless endeavors which he made to contact the kidnapers of his child.

Leebove's last home address in New York was 28 E. Tenth St. It is a fashionable house. The superintendent there said that Leebove had moved out about two months ago, leaving no forwarding address. He also said that Leebove had not occupied the apartment for some time before he moved.

Germaine To Come Back from Russia

George Germaine, mining engineer of Escanaba, who has been working for the Soviet government in the Ural mountain region in Russia for the last four years, will return to America early next month, according to a telegram received by his father, William Germanie, 513 South Eleventh street.

Mr. Germaine is a graduate of the Michigan College of Mining and Technology at Houghton. Following his graduation, he was employed in exploration work in Canada for a British mining company, and later he went to superintend mining operations in Mexico. When revolution broke out in Mexico about five years ago, he returned to Escanaba, and a few months later went to Russia to superintend a mining property for the Soviet government.

Recall in American politics was first known here during the time of the Continental Congress. Pennsylvania's delegates refused to sign the Declaration of Independence, were recalled, and other delegates sent in their places.

EDITORIAL

A REAL PROBLEM

THE week-end grist of news furnished enough evidence to indicate that the crime problem is attaining serious proportions in America, and further emphasizes the necessity for decisive and concerted action by all law enforcement authorities.

In a brazen, Jesse James style, a desperado kidnaped a sheriff in the southwest and took him for a ride. Last Saturday, four officers were massacred and two others wounded by a fusillade of machine gun bullets fired by gangsters, who apparently were attempting to liberate an escaped convict, who was being returned to the penitentiary. In another section of the country, a millionaire brewer was kidnaped for $100,000 ransom. The kidnapers set on their demands and are now at liberty.

Attorney General Cummings has issued an ultimatum that he will invoke all powers at his command in an attempt to combat racketeering and associated evils. Organized crime is firmly intrenched and the law enforcement agencies of the nation will have a big job on their hands. Lives must be sacrificed in such an effort. It is going to take courage and brains to break the power that the various criminal groups hold over the people.

STACK IS PRAISED

THE Lansing State-Journal, which does not hesitate to criticize or commend as the case may be, now comes out editorially to sing the praises of Auditor General John K. Stack Jr., Escanaba's contribution to the official family that has been in charge of things down in Lansing since the first of the year.

Auditor General Stack, judging from reports coming northward, has made an exceedingly favorable impression down in Lansing, particularly because of the courageous and direct manner in which he tackles the problems that come before him. Mr. Stack has been given splendid treatment by the leading newspapers of the state, and his popularity has grown so rapidly that now he is being discussed as gubernatorial timber for the 1934 campaign.

The Lansing State-Journal has the following words of praise for Auditor General Stack and State Treasurer Theodore I. Fry:

"Will the legislators, now going back to astonish their constituents with recital of mighty deeds done at Lansing since last January, please take with them the commendation of two state officials.

"In all the hubbub incident to the political revolution in the state, at least two state of Michigan, quietly and unostentatiously. These two men are the state treasurer, Theodore I. Fry, and the auditor general, John K. Stack, jr.

"It is not the purpose here to attempt to embarrass either of these officials with fulsome praise, nor is it the purpose to claim that all their official deeds have been beyond the possibility of critical deeds have been beyond the possibility of critical public discussion. But it deserves to be said that they have acquitted themselves like men, so far as the general impression goes. There has been opportunity to come at a general impression for the newspapers over the state have been saying a deal about the conduct of state government at Lansing. Most of the discussion has been highly critical and unsparing.

"Both Mr. Fry and Mr. Stack have given the impression that they knew their jobs and their responsibilities. They have given the impression that, while good party men, yet their first duty was to do a workmanlike job for the people of the whole state of Michigan. So long as any public official takes an attitude of that kind he need not be an outstanding genius.

"What two among the new officials have been less in the public prints than Mr. Fry and Mr. Stack? It is not quite so true of the conduct of the office of auditor general as it is the conduct of the office of state treasurer, but so far as state treasurer is concerned, he is usually a good treasurer in proportion to his success in keeping his name out of the papers. Neither Mr. Fry nor Mr. Stack has regarded the commissions given them by the people of Michigan as entailing a daily recital of political blah, from the front steps of the capitol.

"One day last week there was a meeting of the state executive board in which a strictly party attitude was registered. That board action prevented Highway Commissioner Dillman from completing work in hand, through the next two weeks. The democratic action must have seemed to many readers as unnecessarily narrow. Mr. Fry and Mr. Stack acted with their party. But their attitude on that occasion doubtless arose out of their sense of party loyalty even though it did seem to narrow their attitude. That is a defect of politics in general, from which not even the broadest men may wholly escape. On the whole, the official and party attitudes of the men here mentioned have been sound, useful.

"The people of Michigan are seeking sound service irrespective of the party label."

A JOINT MEETING

GLADSTONE and Escanaba business and professional men will hold a get-together meeting at the Legion hall in Gladstone this evening.

F. G. Johnson, upper peninsula representative of the Ford Motor company, who will be the principal speaker at the meeting, will describe the company's operations in this northern section of the state.

The address promises to be a highly interesting one for the activities of this company are far-flung. At Iron Mountain are located the main lumber and chemical manufacturing plants, while smaller sawmills are situated at L'Anse and Pequaming. The Ford Motor company has thousands of acres of timber lands, sufficient to maintain a wood supply for many years to come. Iron mines are also operated by the company in the vicinity of Negaunee.

More recent developments have been the acquisition of low grade iron ore properties in the Metropolitan district, vast limestone deposits in Chippewa and Mackinac counties, and the waterfront site at Gladstone.

While it is not known whether Mr. Johnson intends to discuss the future plans of the company in this county, the description of the present operations alone will provide a message that will be altogether worthwhile. Then, too, the meeting furnishes a wonderful opportunity for the citizens of the two communities to get acquainted and discuss their mutual problems. It is to be hoped that there will be a large representation from both cities at the gathering.

ON THE WAY OUT

IT WOULD be extremely foolish to suppose that the current business revival has solved all of the troubles which the depression brought us. Nevertheless, a nation which has suffered from hard times for three long years can be pardoned for letting itself gloat a bit over the increasing signs of a solid and substantial pick-up.

Col. Leonard P. Ayres, one of the most respected business diagnosticians in the country, told the Ohio Bankers Association the other day that "business recovery is going forward in the United States with a vigor never before equaled."

Not in 144 years, he said, had American business recorded as great a monthly advance as was shown this year from March to April. Furthermore, he predicted that the improvement from March through June will prove to be the greatest ever recorded in any three months of American history.

Our troubles aren't over . . . but isn't the end of them in plain sight, at last?

BARGAIN BRIDE

(By NEA Service) BY KATHARINE HAVILAND-TAYLOR

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BARRETT COLVIN, back in New York after four years, finds himself much attracted by 20-year-old ELINOR STAFFORD. Barrett is 35, wealthy and has made a name for himself as an archeologist. Elinor's mother, LIDA STAFFORD, is beautiful and, because she wants attention for herself, has always forced her daughter to wear unbecoming clothes and keep in the background. Lida schemes constantly to keep in the good graces of her husband's wealthy aunt, MISS ELLA SEXTON, in order to inherit a share of the Sexton fortune.

Barrett's half-sister, MARCIA RADNOR, tells him she is terrified for fear her husband will learn of an unfortunate episode in her past. Years before Barrett shielded Marcia when a youthful flirtation ended disastrously. Marcia had a son whom Barrett adopted. The boy is nine years old now and his tutor HAROLD DEXTER, has threatened Marcia with blackmail. She declares that if her husband learns the truth he will never forgive her.

Barrett goes to visit nine-year-old GERALD, his ward. He decides to discharge the tutor and find a new home for the boy. He goes to see Miss Ella Sexton who tells him she can not decide to whom to leave her money. Barrett refuses to advise her. As he is leaving he meets Lida Stafford, Elinor's mother. She suspects his interest in her daughter and determines to put a stop to it.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VI

There was no sign in Lida Stafford's smiling face that Barrett's words had aroused her. She said warmly, "How charming of you! Please do come. I've been anxious about Elinor lately and the sort of young men she seems to prefer. I'd like to have her know you!"

That, Lida thought with satisfaction, was a start and a good one. She wasn't going to have Barrett Colvin paying attentions to her daughter. It would completely spoil her plans. Lida wanted to cultivate Barrett because she knew Aunt Ella thought highly of him. Winning his friendship would impress Aunt Ella, who had the old-fashioned notion that marriage should provide a clear and devoted view of one's husband and blindness to all others.

Furthermore Barrett Colvin was attractive and Lida was not ready to believe any attractive man could prefer her daughter to herself.

She was sure that her words had found their mark. She had seen the stiffening of Barrett's honest face. The thing to do, Lida decided a few moments later as she waited in the airless reception room for Miss Ella, was to make Barrett feel that there was no redeeming Elinor. He was credulous as a child. It would be easy to convince him that Elinor was a member of the wild younger set. Oh, yes, she knew just how to manage it! And to a man of his sort that would be enough.

Lida moved restlessly. Would the old lady never come? Barrett Colvin had said she was well. Only that morning the manager of a small, select gown shop had asked insinuatingly, listing several purchases, "Your cousin, Miss Sexton—is she well?" The woman's glance had been chilly and it had held a question, too. All those unpaid bills. So many people waiting for the death of the indefatigable old lady.

"So trying—the whole affair!" Lida thought.

Miss Smythe entered then. "I am sorry," she said, (and Lida knew she was not sorry), "Miss Sexton has gone to lie down and begs to be excused."

Insolence, Lida decided, but she smiled as she rose, drawing her fur coat closer about her soft, white throat. One had to smile upon Miss Smythe.

"I'll look in tomorrow if that suits," Lida murmured in her sweetest way.

"I will ask Miss Sexton to telephone you," Miss Smythe answered.

Lida thought, "Poisonous Victorian trump!" Was it possible that Miss Smythe had heard about her affair with Vance Carter? Had Bessie or Jim Thorpe talked? How Lida hated them!

Miss Smythe said her chill, "Good afternoon," and Craven opened the door. Lida found herself outside in the thickening light of an autumn late afternoon. She had promised to meet Vance—but was it safe? She hesitated, glanced over her shoulder at the brown stone house, then gave a low-voiced order to the chauffeur. He started the car, a cynical smile in his wise eyes.

As they moved away Lida opened her purse, drew out a vanity case and with practiced, automatic gestures began to freshen the rouge on her lips.

She had no respect for Vance Carter but he was useful to her. When his hungry eyes followed her Lida knew her power. After sending him away she would find herself assured of her charm and beauty. Retaining that beauty had become to Lida the most important thing in the world.

She considered Vance as rather amusingly simple. She knew that he dreamed of marrying her when she could divorce Bentwell. Thinking of this made her smile in a manner in which she never smiled in public. Vance had an income of $50,000 a year and Lida was wearied of what she called "poverty."

Marry Vance on $50,000 a year? Well, hardly!

She was able to manage him easily, however. Miss Ella did not approve of divorced persons and Vance's mind was the sort that could comprehend waiting and lying to one who must some day die with the hope of benefiting financially by that death. Vance had for 10 years gone each Sunday to a Fifth Avenue church with the aunt who had left him his income. He and his friends considered it a good joke, laughing uproariously at it.

Lida rode toward their meeting place with a feeling of oppression. Had some sneak reported to the old lady about her (Lida's) visit to Todd Langdon's studio? Or her meetings with Vance? Lida knew that she was menaced but she could not tell whether the danger was large or small.

"I'll get out at the next corner, Grier," she told the chauffeur. She had to be so careful! The tea room she entered a moment later was an inconspicuous one. It was crowded now and Lida felt the admiration and wonder of many eyes turned her way to linger. Vance had reserved a table in a booth. He crossed the room and said, looking down on her, "I thought you'd never come!"

She smiled as they moved toward the booth to settle side by side. He pulled her gloves from her hands. She sighed, relaxed.

"So tired!" she murmured.

Vance's voice dropped to a whisper. "Darling one!" he said, leaning toward her. He was a satisfactory admirer—dark, slim, showing the worldly weariness that was his in bold, shadowed eyes.

"I've come from Aunt Ella's. She did not receive me—and it hurt!"

"Lord! Fancy not seeing you if one could!" he murmured. He groped beneath the table for her hand.

"I have endured Bentwell for so many years in order to avoid

THE EARLY RISER

I like to rise at half-past five,
When all the men awake, alive,
Are either watchmen coming off
The job, or fellows starting golf,
Or burglars homeward bound again—
I like to rise each morning then,
While on the rose the dews repose,
Or would if we possessed a rose.

I like to rise and greet the dawn
While night still lingers on the lawn,
Although it always makes me squirm
To step upon the early worm.
I like to rise, although the cop
Will always turn around, and stop,
And doubt if ev'rything is right,
And wonder where I spent the night.

I like to rise, as I have said,
At half-past five, to spring from bed
And brew the coffee, boil an egg,
And to my daily labor leg,
Begin my task with vigor, vim,
While still the sky is somewhat dim,
The moment night is nearly through—
Although it's true I seldom do.

FOREST CAMP LIFE DESCRIBED

Lieuts. Price and Belding Speak at Kiwanis Meeting

Various phases of the camp life of the Civilian Conservation Corps at Garth were described by Lieut. Alfred L. Price, U. S. A., officer in charge, and Lieut. Leland J. Belding, U. S. N., camp medical officer, in addresses before the Escanaba Kiwanis club at the Ludington hotel yesterday noon.

Lieut. Price sketched briefly the history of the reforestation program, described the conditioning period at Camp Custer, and then told of the establishment of the camp at Garth. He explained that the army and navy are responsible for the discipline and administration of the camp, while the work in the woods will be under the supervision of the U. S. forest service and the state conservation department. The first reforestation project will be the construction of a combination road and firebreak, about seven miles from the camp.

Lieut. Price stated that because of the rapidity with which the forest camps have been established there is a sorry lack of equipment at most of them. Contributions from individuals and firms in Rapid River, Gladstone and Escanaba have supplied them with such equipment as a power plant, radio, water pumps and lumber. He added that the camp staff and the young men would appreciate it very much if other donations were made, such as electric bulbs, used boards, magazines, books and newspapers.

Lieut. Belding told about the health program that is carried on in the camps.

School Election In Maple Ridge Will Be July 10

Rock, Mich., June 19.—A quiet school election is in prospect when voters of Maple Ridge township cast their ballot on Monday July 10.

August Larson and Lawrence Molloy, present incumbents, are the only candidates to file their petitions before the last day, June 10. Unless some one runs as a slip candidate, Mr. Larson and Mr. Molloy will be unopposed for reelection. There is a possibility that before election day, a bill, already passed by the state legislature, will have become a law under Governor Comstock's signature. This bill, known as the Deprato bill, will eliminate the possibility of slip candidates at school elections.

Mr. Molloy, who is candidate for reelection as secretary of the board of education, has been a member of that body for more than ten years. Mr. Larson, seeking reelection as treasurer, has held that position for the past nine years. Other members of the present board of education are: Frank Brander, president, and Henry LaChapelle and Albert Norden, trustees.

AMUSEMENTS

"The Keyhole," a picture of romance and gay adventure, unique in plot and glamorous in setting, in which the two popular Warner Bros. stars, Kay Francis and George Brent appear together for the first time, opens at the Delft Theatre today.

There is a swell chosen cast of selected players. Glenda Farrell and Allen Jenkins form an excellent comedy team, their pseudo romance acting as a foil to set off and accentuate the dramatic roles of the two co-featured players, Miss Francis and Brent. The other three players who have important parts are Monroe Owsley, Helen Ware, and Henry Kolker.

The screen play by Robert Presnell is based on Alice D. G. Miller's story "Adventuress," and is everything that the original title implies. The theme treats of a beautiful young dancer who marries an elderly man of great wealth and social prominence who is extremely jealous of his young wife and engages a private detective to watch her.

Dogged by the spy and fleeing from a blackmailer, the heroine becomes involved in some startling situations that lead to strange entanglements. The story carries the spectator from the palaces of New York aboard a coastwise liner to Havana. Most of the scenes take place on shipboard and in the Cuban capital. There are many beautiful scenes at sea and in the tropical atmosphere of the southern island.

FOREST CREWS IN LUCE COUNTY

Protective Woods Work Will Be Started Latter Part of Week

Newberry, June 19—Forest soldiers will be at work in Luce county woods before the end of the week. Advance guard officers arrived in Newberry on Sunday night and report that the first contingent of the workers is expected Wednesday or Thursday. Camp 1686 will be located on Cahalane lake, east of forest reserve headquarters on the Superior state forest tract. Officers in charge will be E. A. Muellen and Lieut. E. J. Sacha. The Newberry forest camp No. 1688 will be located near Eight Mile corner with Lieut. J. E. Canary and Lieut. J. L. Richardson in charge. These two groups complete the present set-up for the county group, according to Conservation Officer Julius Thorsen who has been in charge of drafting the work projects and outlining the reforesting and reclamation program. The Newberry camp is located on open country where once was a fine stand of white and Norway pine. A great deal of work can be done here to make the land again productive. The Superior camp is in heavily wooded territory with all types of work ready for the boys. A great deal can be done in thinning and in fire-line and other protective work in that locality.

At the Manistique forest camp located at The Pines Co. No. 1687, will be commanded by Capt. Farlow Burt and Lieut. C. H. Lundquest. At the Mackinac national forest Co. No. 1689 will be under the direction of Capt. C. H. Anderson and Lieut. E. D. Stark. John Sleming of Detroit arrived in Newberry on Monday morning and was taken by Mr. Thorsen to the Cusino game refuge where he will become camp superintendent for the C. C. C. work there.

NEWBERRY LOCALS

Miss Rena Hale was taken to the Perry-Spinks hospital early on Sunday for an emergency operation for appendicitis. Hospital officials report that she is doing nicely.

The Earl Peake party, fishing on the west branch of the Two Heart, on Sunday report they saw two moose. These animals are becoming a more common sight by woodsmen and sportsmen and have been sighted several times along the highway east of Newberry.

Dr. H. E. Perry and daughter Miss Jean Barbara arrived Sunday from Milwaukee where Miss Perry was graduated from the Milwaukee Downer seminary. Miss Perry wrote an assay on the Tahquamenon which was selected as one of the four best contributed by the large class.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shimmins and daughter Nadine arrived home Sunday from Washington, D. C., bringing with them their son John Shimmins who graduated last week from Georgetown university.

LUCE COUNTY LOSES

An announcement from the state headquarters of the conservation department shows that while Schoolcraft county will receive more than two and a quarter million fish planted in its lakes and streams, Luce county will get a little more than a hundred thousand. Local sportsmen and business men on Monday were loud in their dissatisfaction concerning the unequal distribution and are asking "how come?" The figures released by the department give Schoolcraft the following:

Pike perch	1,675,000
Brook trout	478,070
Brown trout	45,600
Rainbow	10,000
Black bass	4,625
Perch	72,800
Bluegills	18,500
Total	2,305,375
For Luce county:
Brook trout	87,125
Black bass	1,600
Perch	14,000
Total	102,725

Marie, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Cronk of Newberry, died Sunday morning at the local hospital following a brief illness from appendicitis. The young woman was 18 years of age and had been married less than a year. Besides her husband and parents she leaves two brothers and two younger sisters. The body was taken to the Beaulieu parlors and later removed to the home of the parents. The funeral will be held from the residence Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Richard Kirkbride of St. Ignace officiating, and burial will take place in Forest Home cemetery.

A man's cigarette?

Well—here's why I enjoy Luckies

Somehow, I have always felt that it takes a really fine cigarette to please a man. And since many of the men whose judgment I value smoke Luckies ... I reach for a Lucky, too. True, I enjoy Luckies' fine tobacco quality and their delicious mildness. But my real reason is perhaps a trifle feminine. Men may not appreciate this as much as a sensitive woman—but I'm particularly grateful to "Toasting" for that comforting assurance of purity. I've talked to many women about this—remember, a cigarette becomes an intimate thing with us, we place it between our lips. And so, perhaps, because I am a woman this is my woman's reason for always saying "Luckies Please!"

Feminine Buying Power Provides Only Real Profit

Ann Arbor, June 19.—Feminine faces and figures, kept in line with fashions dictates, plus minor articles of adornment for milady's frocks and hats, were all that kept many department store figures from going very badly into the red last year. The annual report of department store performance, just released by the University of Michigan Bureau of Business Research, shows that only eight departments, corsets and brassieres, waists and knit goods, hosiery, muslin and silk underwear, toilet articles, notions, laces and neckwear and veilings earned a profit during 1932.

As it was, these victories of fashion did not prevent a net loss on all merchandise of 5.3 per cent of net sales, while sales volume dropped 25.6 per cent from 1931 and 57.2 from 1929 figures, Edgar H. Gault, professor of marketing reports.

Departments whose sales grew in relative importance during 1932 all handled fashionable items of low unit cost. Although, in comparison with 1931, the sales in all departments decreased, the pattern department showed a relative increase of 30 per cent, and the sales of silk, velvet, woolens and ribbons did well also, indicating that sewing machines were humming again as home dressmaking and remodeling regained some of their old popularity. Women's and men's ready to wear departments both fared badly. Another feature of the year was the moving upstairs of much "basement store" trade, due to lower prices on better class merchandise, a trend quickly noticed by bargain hunters.

Durable merchandise, such as furniture, rugs and crockery, showed the poorest selling record, reports Professor Gault, few people apparently being able or willing to make large outlays. The real problem facing store managers, however, is that of bringing their payroll, advertising, buying expense and other overhead into line with drastically reduced sales while maintaining departmental stocks at reasonable levels, he states.

Summer Care Of Your Baby

This is the fourth of a series of six articles by Olive Roberts Barton, expert on child rearing, on "Summer Care of Babies." Today the writer gives some helpful pointers on baby's sunbath.

Be careful about sunbaths these scorching days.

Again I urge that the doctor be consulted about what your children need. As I said in a former article, it is not necessary to call him every five minutes on the telephone or even every day. But make out a list of questions to ask when you do see him. And make it a point to see him. His advice plus your good judgment make the best combination of safety I know.

Scorching summer sun shining for long directly on the body can do a great deal of harm. It is just a question whether on very hot days small bodies need sunbaths at all. But if so, it should be in the first part of the morning, or toward evening.

Ask the Dovtor's Advice

I cannot presume to direct the sunbath when the thermometer is 90 or 95 degrees. Then the chief business of life is to keep the children as cool as possible. But ask the doctor. He will direct you.

Those children old enough to run around, as well as the baby, need very little clothing. You cannot keep them in the shade every second but at midday and during the intense afternoon heat, it is better for them to be in the darkened quiet house. Don't let them play out on a baked street with the sun beating down on bare heads and where the concrete is hot enough to fry pancakes.

Later in the summer the children will get more "hardened" to the sun. These first hot days have the effect of shock. The sun, like some medicines, has to be approached gradually in small doses to be at all useful. When skin pigments increase and the skin is conditioned to stand the onslaught of rays, children may more safely stand exposure.

Mid-Afternoon Dangerous

But one rule I should observe all through the summer. Never permit continued exposure through the hot part of the afternoon. During that time they should be quiet. And most of them should either be having naps (up to five—or even six in a more delicate child), or if not napping, resting in bed—alone.

A word here about sunburn. I believe that most people know now that sunburn is not to be fooled with. Not only does it destroy skin surface and its power to throw off perspiration, but it does things to the body. When a certain amount of skin surface is destroyed even temporarily, it throws an extra burden on other excretory organs, sometimes more than they can take are of. Go at sunburn slowly and carefully.

Keep Little Heads Covered

Heads should be covered. Make the little children wear brimmed hats (you can get them for a dime) when they are out in the hot sun.

I have been asked about codliver oil in summer. This is one other thing the doctor has to settle. The sun is considered a substitute, or rather the other way about. Many children are taken off the oil when hot days begin. But others continue it if they are weak, ill, or malnourished. The little baby too may or many not need it depending on his condition, where he lives and how he lives.

All signs fail in this cruel weather. There can be no blanket rule that covers every case.

NEXT: Summer cleanliness.

Receives Master's Degree

Miss Kathleen Brophy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Brophy of Nahma, formerly of this city, received her Master's Degree, at commencement at the University of Wisconsin on Monday.

Miss Brophy completed her course at Wisconsin last year with high honors, receiving among other awards a "Final Emblem," the highest distinction which the University confers, its requirements, excellent work in athletics, winning of a scholarship, membership on two varsities and earning of a "W." She returned to Wisconsin in the fall to complete her studies for a Master's Degree.

Mr. and Mrs. Brophy left Saturday afternoon for Madison to attend commencement, Miss Betty Brophy, who is a student nurse at Bellin Memorial hospital, joining them in Green Bay. Kathleen will remain in Madison for the summer months in charge of the Girl Scout work there.

Flat Rock Fields Blessed Sunday; Over 900 Attend

In a gorgeous natural setting, at the beautiful farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Calixte Charlebois, Flat Rock, a crowd estimated at 900 to 1,000 people attended the ceremony of the blessing of the fields Sunday afternoon. The service began at the church, with a large concourse unable to gain admission to the edifice. The procession then proceeded to the field altar, where Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was given and the ritual prayer for the protection of farms was read, Monsignor R. C. Jacques officiated, assisted by the Rev. Fr. Anthony Waechter as deacon and the Rev. Mr. Matt La Violette as sub-deacon. Father George Laforest was master of ceremonies.

In an inspiring sermon, addressed to the assembled hundreds standing in the open, Father Sebastian Maier of Gladstone paid a glowing tribute to the laboring man.

"We are assembled here in God's own magnificent cathedral; we tread carpets not woven by the hand of man; all about us are trees, shrubs, and a riot of flowers," he said.

"God's hand is not shortened in gifts that defy definition and appreciation, and the farmer works so close to all this that, while he holds one handle of the plow, God holds the other. Of no one more than the farmer can it be said: 'man must labor and conquer the earth.' Without God, a farmer is an anomaly—trying to conquer God's footstool all alone. God's cooperation is indispensable. Your wonderful manifestation of faith today speaks volumes for you, of how well you understand this."

Two hundred pupils of the religious vacation school attended in a body and sang hymns and recited prayers during the procession, under the direction of the Sisters of All Saints' school, Gladstone. The Holy Name Society, the Sacred Heart League, the confraternities of the Propagation of Faith and the Way of the Cross, the Guard of Honor of the Blessed Sacrament, and the association for the Spiritual Relief of the Orient, all attended.

The choir of the Flat Rock Holy Family church sang several hymns. The service lasted close to two hours, and was most orderly throughout, under the guidance of the marshal of the day, Luke Flemal, and of the supervisor of Escanaba township, Jovite Robert, and a corps of assistants.

MEN WITH JOBS CUT FROM LIST

No More Aid Will Be Given Those Now Gainfully Employed

All persons now gainfully employed, who previously have been receiving aid through the city, will be refused further aid and their names removed from the welfare lists, it was announced yesterday by City Manager F. R. Buechner, and payrolls of the various industries of the city are now being checked to ascertain just how many, whose names are still on the lists, have been given employment.

Removal will be effective immediately, as flour distribution is scheduled for tomorow and issuance of grocery orders on Saturday.

This course was adopted when it was found that in at least one, and possibly more case the recipient of the aid was still applying, although working.

A check of the Cooperage pay was made yesterday and in some 20 cases, names of persons on the local relief lists were found. No effort was made to determine if any of the 20 had received orders from the welfare department since they have started to work, but all of the names have been removed from the lists.

There are also many instances where men are employed, whether full or part time, who have received aid in past months through signing of work order agreements and who have not as yet worked out the amount of the aid extended.

While not officially confirmed, it is believed possible that in these instances arrangements may be made whereby the men may be released temporarily from their present jobs long enough to work out the amount owed for aid given. Another alternative would be payment in cash of the amount to which they are indebted.

Local Teams Play In 5 Exhibition Games On Sunday

Gladstone diamond ball teams playing in exhibitions on Sunday didn't quite break even, winning two games and losing three out of the five played.

On the local diamond, the Veneers split a double header with the Unitells of Escanaba, winning the first, 8 to 3, and dropping the second, 6 to 3.

The Five and Dimes lost a doubleheader to the North Sears at Escanaba and dropped both games by one-run margins after leading throughout the major part of the battles. In both instances, five-run rallies in the sixth frame proved the undoing the local ten.

At Garth, McIntyre held the Conservation corps team to one hit and the Olson-Hanson clan won by a shutout, 15 to 0.

In the first game here, Duchenay allowed the Unitells but one hit, while Baillargeon was touched for five. Rabitoy and Somen formed the other halves of the batteries. In the second game, Curtis and Switzer worked for the Veneers, while A. Johnson and Somen was the Esky battery. Johnson held the Veneers to two safeties, while Curtis was nicked for five.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Constantino and little daughter, Joan, spent the week-end at the home of Mr. Constantino's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Constantino at Escanaba.

COON EXPLAINS LIQUOR CONTROL

Rotarians Hear Talk on State Law Governing Beer Traffic

A concise and interesting talk on the Michigan State Liquor Control law was given by Marvin L. Coon, manager of the branch office of the Liquor Control Commission at Escanaba, before the Gladstone Rotary Club yesterday noon.

The main features of the act adopted by the state were related and explained by Mr. Coon who stated that while some portions of the act are specific, others are not and rules and regulations which will govern in certain cases have been left to the discretion of the Liquor Control Commission and the Executive Committee of the commission, the commission having charge of administering the law.

The commission is composed of 17 members, at present 12 men and 5 women, and the executive committee is composed of three members. The latter is in direct charge when the commission is not in meeting.

That the Michigan law was one of the best yet adopted by any state to govern the manufacture and distribution of beer and light wine, was the opinion expressed by the speaker. He said that the commission was really 'pioneering' and had kept the bars up high, but that it was his belief that modifications would be forthcoming.

He also predicted that, in event of a special session of the legislature, there would be many changes made in the law by means of legislative amendments, and that in case the 18th amendment was repealed, which appears likely, that an entirely new law would be enacted.

Freeman Empson, son of G. R. Empson, and Herbert Bauers, son of C. A. Bauers, were guests of their fathers at the meeting.

"Present Ford Operations in the Upper Peninsula," has been given as the subject of the talk to be given by Mr. Johnson, who is directly in charge of interests of the motor company in this portion of the state. He is expected to review the extensive holdings and the scope of present operations of the company in upper Michigan. He is also expected to tell something of what the company is trying to do in developing of industrial farmers.

BURN'S TRIAL IS POSTPONED

Attorneys Request More Time to Complete Their Cases

Arraignment of Patrick Burns alleged Detroit gangster charged with obtaining money under false pretenses was postponed until Tuesday, June 27 by Judge Herbert W. Runnels yesterday afternoon at the opening of the June non jury term of circuit court to allow attorneys sufficient time in which to prepare to argue motions.

Defense attorneys Herbert and Hixson moved for the dismissal of both cases against Burns on the grounds that the informations were based upon invalid warrants and complaints and should be quashed and that the transcripts were not properly written and the examinations were not fair to the respondent. In the charge preferred by Harvey Goudreau, defense attorneys claimed that no bill of particulars was filed to conform with the statutes defense. Attorneys also presented a motion for a change of venue on both cases. Prosecutor William J. Sheahan sought to amend the warrant by entering the information in the warrant as certain new facts developed in the examinations. He stated the court took the matter under advisement.

Judge Runnels ruled that it would not be necessary for Burns to appear at the arraignment next Tuesday and that the bond would stand at $10,000 but that the respondent would have to appear at the September term or at any such time as the court ruled.

Joseph Isaac, Ottwa Indian, charged with a similar offense in connection with the stock selling scheme in the supposed rotary airplane motor stood mute when arraigned and the court entered a plea of not guilty.

A bench warrant with bail set at $1,000 was issued by the court in the case of Donald K. Smith charged with bastardy.

Motion for a new trial in the case of John S. Wilde vs. Meade Anderson by Attorneys Herbert and Hixson was denied by the court as was a similar motion made by Attorney Roy Derham plaintiffs attorney in the case of the Fidelity and Casualty company of New York vs. the Board of County Road Commissioners.

Court was adjourned until ten o'clock this morning.

C. C. C.'s Again Win From Fords, 8-7

Creighton's Fords lost a hard fought game to the Steuben Foresters Sunday afternoon at Steuben, losing by a score of 8-7 before a crowd of 500 manistique diamond ball fans. The defeat was the second handed to the Fords by the C. C. C.'s in two starts.

With the count tied at 7-7 at the end of the eighth, the Fords failed to score in their half of the ninth and the Foresters shoved the winning tally across before a man was retired. Nels Halsey and Vern Dufour did the battery work for the Fords, while Koppe and Stanley did heavy duty for the Foresters.

New York, June 19 (AP)—With the dollar again weak, financial markets pushed ahead with vigor today as it became clear that the government did not intend to interrupt its program of rising prices with any immediate move for currency control or stabilization.

On the theory that inflation was still the order of the day, stocks zoomed upward with a buoyancy reminiscent of earlier stages of their bull market, closing with many net gains of 2 to 9 points. Wheat and corn, up 2 to 3 cents a bushel, cotton improving better than a dollar a bale and other commodities generally lifting their levels gave additional evidence that traders did not think prices had gone high enough.

Advances Brisk

The Standard Statistics-Associated Press average for 90 stocks closed at 84.8, up 5.7 net, compared with last Monday's high for the year of 86.5. The composite advance, however, was the largest since March 15. Turnover was 5,485,336 shares, a smaller amount of business than has been done in many rising markets. Trading was active at the opening and again at the close; there were interim periods of comparative dullness when profits were being taken.

Speculators devoted much attention to industrial favorites, figuring, no doubt, that with the government committed to expenditure of huge sums for rehabilitation of business, those companies were likely to benefit soonest. It was, however, rather hard to find laggards anywhere in the list, for rails and utilities were notably strong.

Apart from the inflationary imputations which Wall Street saw in week-end developments related to dollar exchange was a variety of favorable business items. A trade review thought steel production should reach 50 percent of capacity this week; it is nearly at that level now. Building construction is picking up, especially in the residential category.

Uncle Sam's foreign trade made seasonal increases in May. Exports, totaling $114,000,000, compared with $105,000,000 for April and $132,000,000 a year ago. Imports aggregated $107,000,000, largest since last July. Sales of our goods to other countries was assumedly helped by expectations of rising prices here and by our currency's depreciation.

The dollar had a sharp relapse in foreign exchange dealings, such a turn being viewed as a natural result of America's decision against a "pegging" at this time. Sterling jumped about 8 cents.

Curb Mart Moves Briskly Forward On Broad Front

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, June 19 (AP)—The curb market moved forward on a broad front today, with leaders retracing a goodly part of the ground lost in last week's reaction.

Prices were higher from the initial dealings and worked steadily upward in moderate trading, to close with advances ranging from 1 to more than 5 points.

Columbia Gas & Electric preferred soared 12 points. American Gas & Electric, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and Electric Bond and Share advanced about 4½ each. Lesser gains among the utilities were made by Cities Service, American Superpower and American Light & Traction.

Sherwin Williams responded to a reported increase in paint prices with an advance of 3½. Parker Rust Proof rose 6 while other industrial shares improving 3 to 5 points included Aluminum Company of America, Babcock & Wilcox, Deere & Co., Glen Alden Coal, Todd Shipbuilding, Hazel Atlas Glass and A. O. Smith.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, June 19—Skyward flights of grain values one day whirled most prices of markets up a maximum of 3¼ cents a bushel, and shattered numerous high price records.

Broadened speculative buying resulted from renewal of inflation talk, but the outstanding factor as to grain was reported irreparable widespread damage to spring wheat as a result of four successive days of approximate 100 degree temperatures. Some crop authorities said hopes for a 1933 big yield of spring wheat had been abandoned.

Wheat closed strong, 2 3-8 to 2 7-8 above Saturday's finish, corn 1 7-8 to 2 3-4 up, oats 2 1-8 to 2 5-8 advanced and provisions unchanged to a rise of 27 cents.

New York, June 19 (AP)—Spurred by a renewal of inflationary psychology, secondary issues today rallied for gains of 1 to 4 or more points in the bond market.

The more speculative loan categories closely followed stocks as the dollar declined sharply in foreign exchange markets on intimations that Washington was not in agreement with currency stabilization at the present rates. United States government securities were dull and mixed and foreign obligations moved uncertainly. Highest grade corporation maturities were rather hesitant.

The trading volume expanded to $15,087,000, par value, and the average for 60 domestic corporate bonds advanced half a point.

Low-priced rails were the most active gainers, responding apparently both to dollar depreciation and continued improvement in traffic revenues. Among the best of the carriers were issues of Alleghany Corp., Baltimore & Ohio, St. Paul, Chicago & North Western, Rock Island, Erie, and New York Central.

hurting the old lady," Lida went on. Again she sighed. She felt a pleasant sense of long-suffering saintliness, untouched by the fact that her manner of "enduring" was so extremely vocal that it had, more than once, driven Bentwell to his club to try to forget the lash of her tongue.

Vance's hands tightened on her hand violently. For the first time he looked away from her. Stealing a side glance at him she saw his face drawn by emotion. His chin was set. "I can't bear to think of you having to endure anything," he said harshly, unevenly and too loudly. "I want to give you—everything, Lida. I want to take care of you!"

Privately she thought, "On $50,000!" and found the thought amusing. To him she said, "Vance, you're so sweet! So kind!"

He moved suddenly and again his eyes were upon her, devouring her. Lida saw that he was going to be difficult. It did not frighten her; instead she felt stimulated, enjoying this proof of her charms.

"Vance," she appealed, "baby me! I'm really so pitiably weary. Nothing has gone as it should today. You know how I long for peace and quiet and love and—dear companionship. I've been lonely for years, Vance!"

She raised her large, slate-gray eyes which could fill with synthetic feeling to his face that balked hunger had made stern. For the first time he paid no heed to her appeal.

"Lida," he exclaimed, "I'm tired of it. Meeting you like this for half an hour or so. It's not enough. I can't stand it! You know what I want. You—all your time—everything! Look at me, Lida—sweetest!"

Suddenly then he was silent, leaning away from her, looking away from her. His grip on her hand made a ring cut deep. Lida adored such moments, playing a role and finding warmth from a fire she never felt in her heart.

A few moments later he spoke again, staring down at her lashes, outlined and made ebon by her perfect skin.

"Some day all this will be over, Lida!" he promised a little thickly.

She gave him a fleeting glance, shy and warm. She said, "You know that's my dream, darling."

"Together—" he went on.

"Oh, Vance, if that only could be!"

"It will be. It must! My God, Lida—!"

There was another stretch of silence in which Lida felt the growth of satisfaction in her power. Oh, yes, she could do with him exactly as she wished. Vance worshipped her. Would do anything she said!

Suddenly he turned. His shoulder pressed against hers. Vance said in a quiet tone, "Almost forgot that I've some news for you!"

Fassezke, shooting steadily and accurately under a torrid sun, turned in two cards of 71 to take the $100 cash prize. Par is 72.

An amateur and professional tied for second with scores of 143. Henry Brown, Kalamazoo amateur, finished with a 73 on the afternoon eighteen to go with his morning 70, blowing two short putts on the second round that would have given him the championship. He messed up putts of less than a foot each on ninth and sixteenth greens. Adrian Van Liere, Grand Rapids pro, turned in a par 72 in the afternoon on top of his morning's 71.

Maurie Wells, Grand Rapids, had steady rounds of 72 and 73 for a 145 and a fourth place tie with Larry Wiechman, Ludington, who shot similar rounds. Ed Dayton, Kalamazoo, member of the Michigan golf team, cracked in the afternoon and took a 76 after shooting 70 in his morning round.

The low score for eighteen holes in the one-day 36-hole tournament was turned in by Gene Doster, Benton Harbor amateur—a 69, but he had to put it alongside an 82 for his morning round and finished well down the list with 151.

Many favorites faltered under the intense heat and the strain. Among them was Jim Barfield, pre-tournament favorite and western Michigan amateur champion, of Grand Rapids, who took 76 and 75—151.

Bark River Wins Its Sixth Victory

Bark River, June 19 (Special)—Before a record breaking crowd Bark River's ball team acquired its sixth consecutive win yesterday defeating Perkins on the Bark River diamond by a score of 13-5. Outside of the 6 run rally in the first inning the game was very exciting.

Gustafson of the Perkins team has the distinction of getting the first home run on the local diamond in the past two years, as well as the longest hit ever made here. Brasseau struck out 13 batters.

ESCANABA NINE WINS ANOTHER

Iron Mountain Victims Here by Score of 9 to 1

The Escanaba baseball team hung up its third victory of the season Sunday afternoon at the fairgrounds diamond, defeating the Iron Mountain city team, 7 to 4, in an interesting game. The Escanaba team has shown steady improvement since the start of the season and has not yet suffered a setback.

Burns, local starting pitcher, was wild at times and was removed in the fifth inning in favor of Jonas who hurled no hit ball for the balance of the game.

The victory proved costly for the Escanabans, however, as Moberg, regular catcher, suffered a split finger in the eighth inning and probably will be unable to play for some time. He was relieved by Moreau and Murphy substituted for Moreau at first base.

The local crew performed very creditably in the game with the infielders working splendidly and the outfielders proving exceptional ball hawks.

The Escanaba manager, Murray Boyle, is seeking a game for next Sunday.

The score by innings:

Iron Mountain	100 210 000—4
Escanaba	020 102 02x—9

CARNERA STILL THE BIG CLOWN

Experts Figure He Has Little Chance to Whip Sharkey

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Pompton Lakes, N. J., June 19 (AP)—Primo Carnera, the big bankrupt from Italy, gamboled happily about under the trees of his training camp today, technically in contact with his sparring partners, but actually doing little that was impressive in preparation for his fifteen round title chance against Jack Sharkey June 29.

Freed of financial worries through legal appeal to the law, the vast Venetian put his fistic assets on display for six rounds of punching with Harold Mays, Bayonne, N. J., heavyweight, Les Kennedy, of California, and a clownish negro named Umberto Arsi, labelled the champion of Porto Rico. On the basis of the day's efforts the assembled experts, as far as they could see his chances against Sharkey, promptly petitioned him into fistic bankruptcy.

Marvelous Condition

Weighing 261 pounds, less than his massive frame ever has carried before a fight, Carnera appeared in marvelous physical condition, but with his punching equipment little improved over the last time he fought Sharkey, almost two years ago. Medical treatment has diminished the varicose veins from his tree-trunk legs. Steady application to his boxing lessons has improved his stance, and his ponderous left hand jab. His muscles are bigger than ever and his speed is astonishing for such a tremendous creature.

But Primo today still pushed his sparring partners with his long left, laboriously crossed an occasional right, and became completely fussed the moment a sparring partner did something that wasn't in the book. Two years ago Primo was doing all right with Sharkey for five rounds until the champion switched to a weaving attack that non-plussed the Italian, left him open for one knockdown, and brought him a sturdy thumping through the last ten rounds of that engagement.

Carnera stabbed Mays' nose through two rounds enough to make it bleed, outpointed Arsi through another pair in a mild display and finished off pushing Kennedy around for two more. He worked four more rounds on the light and heavy bags.

BIG SIX STANDINGS

(By The Associated Press)

By the narrow margin of a fraction of a point, Ben Chapman retained his lead over Al Simmons in the battle for the American League batting championship yesterday. Each got one hit as the Yanks and White Sox tangled in their fourth game of the series but Simmons was at bat only three times while Chapman was at the plate four times, permitting the Sox outfielder to close in. They ended the day with Chapman batting .3684 and Simmons .3682. The standings:

Los Angeles Bids For Track Classic

Chicago, June 19 (AP)—The National Collegiate Track and Field championship meet, a Chicago fixture since its inaugural in 1921, probably will be held in Los Angeles in 1934.

One of the greatest of track and field attractions, the meet has failed to draw spectators in Chicago. Los Angeles and the University of Southern California have offered to guarantee expenses of the meet, and Major John L. Griffith, Western Conference athletic commissioner, and president of the N. C. A. A., today said he believed the executive board would accept.

The barque Constance is said to be the oldest steamship in the world; it was built in 1723 and is now in use as a training ship in Copenhagen.

Montreal Seeks Franchise Owned By St. Louis Cards

Montreal, Que., June 19. (AP)—The Montreal Gazette tomorrow will say that plans now are under way for the transfer of the St. Louis Cardinal National league franchise to Montreal. Recent reports have been to the effect that the St. Louis Browns American league franchise might be brought here but the newspaper will say negotiations now definitely are concerned with the Cardinals.

"The situation appears to be this," the Gazette will say, "Owner Phil Ball of the St. Louis Browns and also owner of Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, is willing to release the Cardinals from their lease, believing the city of St. Louis can no longer support two major league ball clubs.

"The Browns and Sportsman's Park represents an investment of $850,000 and owner Ball figures he has too much tied up in his project at St. Louis to move elsewhere. However he is willing to free the Cardinals from their contract."

Masonville Loses To Rock, 20 to 4

Rock Mich., June 19 (Special)—The Rock Spartan baseball team overwhelmed Masonville by a 20-4 score in a loosely played game here Sunday.

The game was a comedy of errors, both teams committing six misplays. The Spartans combined eleven hits with Masonville's blunders to score twenty runs. Unfortunately for the visitors, Rock made most of their errors when they did least damage and consequently Masonville scored only 4 runs with the 5 hits they garnered off of Rabideau and Saven.

Rabideau, Spartan harler, allowed but four hits in the seven innings he pitched and struck out twelve batters.

Saven, who relieved him, struck out two and allowed one hit. Miller, Ervin and King, three Masonville pitchers, allowed five hits and struck out seven.

Score by innings:

Montreal, June 19. (AP)—The Montreal Royals of the International league today announced Lou Finney, Athletics rookie outfielder, had been obtained on option. Finney, who was with the Portland club of the Pacific coast league last year, will replace Hub Walker, recalled by the Ditroit Tigers.

CHICUBS AGAIN LOSE TO GIANTS

Bruins Get Just 3 Hits and Succumb by 3-0 Score

New York, June 19 (AP)—Harold Schumacher, pitching his fifth shutout of the season, today blanked the Chicago Cubs with three hits to give the New York Giants their second consecutive victory over the National league champions. The score was 3 to 0.

The Giants made four errors and Schumacher gave four bases on balls but the 21-year old St. Lawrence college graduate was effective in the pinches.

Charley Root, who opposed Schumacher, pitched good enough to win most ball games but he had two bad innings, the first and the eighth in which the Giants scored all their runs.

The victory increased the number of successive innings, in which the Giants' opposition has not scored on the Giants, to 26.

ORIVER CRASHES FRONT OF CAFE

Accelerator Sticks, Car Lands at Kewaunee Lunch Counter

Backing away from the walk on the opposite side of the street, an automobile occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barret, 401 South Ninth, crashed into the front of the Kewaunee cafe, 1312 Ludington, early Sunday morning.

Barret told police officers who investigated that his accelerator stuck and before he could get the car under control it leaped the curb at the Kewaunee and hit the front of the restaurant, narrowly missing a brick wall on one side of the narrow opening and a large plate glass window on the other. A glass case inside was broken and lunch counters and booths were pushed back. The occupants of the car were unhurt.

John W. Albrecht, proprietor of the Kewaunee, who makes his home in the rear of the cafe, was awakened by the crash, and came out to find an automobile in his cafe.

Delta Chemical Co. To Start Furnace Early This Week

By the end of the week, upwards of one hundred men will be employed at the Delta Chemical and Iron company's plant, which is now operating night and day.

Retorts in the chemical department are now in operation, and the blast furnace will open up today or tomorrow. Iron ore is now being shipped in from the Marquette and Menominee ranges. Chemical wood will be brought in also during the summer from the surrounding region.

This industry resumed operations about a week ago after several months' shutdown. Officials of the company stated yesterday that the outlook was "very promising" since there is a favorable demand for virtually all the products manufactured by the Wells concern.

BASEBALL

Steve Karbon's Caslon Bonds baseball club split even on their week-end baseball card, dropping a 9-8 game to the Canadian Soo and winning 4-2 from the Polish Union Aces. In Saturday's game at the Soo, the Bonds leading 7-3 in the eighth blew up completely as the Canucks tallied six times on assorted hits and errors to put the contest on ice. Sunday's game against the Poles was a pitching duel between Malone for the Bonds and Nietek of the Aces, with the former having a four run margin to work on from the second inning.

Batteries: Caslon Bonds, Nietek and Lasak; Canadian Soo, Miller and Stoughton. Sunday, Caslon Bonds, Malon and Boyak; P. U. Aces, Nietek and Ferris.

DIAMOND BALL

Although they outhit their foes 14-6 costly misplays at critical moments lost an 8-7 contest for the Northland Cafes against the Negaunee Legion club. Playing exceptionally ragged ball, the Bears allowed the visitors to score freely in three innings and the count was 8-3 in the fifth when Malone relieved E. Artibee on the mound. The Legionnaires were held scoreless from that time while the Bears began a belated rally that fell one run short. A return game will be played on the Mining Town diamond.

Batteries: N. Cafe, E. Artibee, Malone and Dale; Negaunee, Torreano and Maki.

Taking their eleventh straight league match, the Northland Cafe Bears dumped Miron's Coaldusters by the wayside 9-2. The Black Diamonds put up a great battle during the early innings but were outhit by the Bears in the final frames. Batteries: Cafes, E. Artibee and Dale; Miron's, Wilson and Laask.

The fishermen from Brown's addition hit hard and often to take a 9-4 decision from the league game and gave the Northland Cafes a 7-6 decision over their closest rivals, the Munising Oils. The Oilers, determined to halt the undefeated league leaders piled up four runs in the second inning to which they added two more during the game but the Bears, fighting an uphill battle, tied the count in the sixth and again in the eighth to finally emerge victorious in the tenth. The batting of Cook for the Oils and H. Fisher and Artibee for the Bears was spectacular while Nelson's running shoestring catch of Gamelin's liner in the sixth was the fielding gem of the contest. Batteries: M. Oils, Miron and Fleming; N. Cafes, E. Artibee and Dale.

Driving the offerings of "Dink" Steinhoff to distant pastures and taking advantage of every misplay, the Caslon Bonds put an abrupt end to Brown's Addition winning streak and copped a 12-5 victory. Steinhoff, who has been pitching good ball, seemed to groove them for the Bond batters, who slammed the first three balls pitched for doubles. Dorenbecker, hurling for the Papermakers, was effective in the pinches, bearing down to strike out batsmen at critical moments. The vicious hitting of Beattie and Miron for the Bonds featured the contest.

Blueberry Prices Will Be Higher

Increased prices for blueberries this season are forecast by those persons who are well informed on the subject.

At the same time, it is believed that the upper peninsula blueberry crop will be lighter, due to the damage done to berry plants by a killing frost which struck the plains' country several days ago. The scarcity in supply and better business and employment conditions in the cities are factors that are believed to indicate a rise in price quotations. Last year, pickers were getting about $1.10 per crate of 16 quarts from commercial buyers.
